Correction

“Internship Requirements” should be removed from the above referenced page:

Internship Requirements

All students enrolled in the EdD in Counseling Psychology degree program at Argosy University, Denver are required to complete an Association of Psychology Postdoctoral and Internship Centers (APPIC) or APPIC like internship. Students are eligible to begin internship when they have successfully completed all their academic course work and passed the Counseling Psychology Comprehensive Examination. It is highly recommended that students have defended their dissertation proposal prior to beginning internship. Students work with the Program Chair or Director of Training to complete the application process and make application to appropriate internship sites. The internship application process begins in September and is completed in December. Internships begin the following August or September. Most internship placements require a 35-40 hour work week commitment for a minimum of 12 months. Students are required to complete 2,080 hours during internship. There are some internship sites in Colorado, however many sites are not in the Denver area. There are sites throughout the United States which the student can apply. Students are not eligible for graduation without completing the internship and dissertation.
